City Works Body Leery of Signs

The Capital Improvement District Commission's signs on its beautification projects offered aldermen a bit of fun again Wednesday.

Members of city council public works committee saw little hope of persuading the commission to build a boat ramp at Clover Point, a parking bay at the yacht pool, or a new entrance road for Beacon Hill Park, or to improve Douglas past the park.

"Why not have signs saying this is a city public works project, and show them that this is one the city is paying for?" asked Ald. Hugh Ramsay, not entirely in fun. "I did oppose those CIDC signs but I don't think we should make them feel we are picayune," said Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow. "It might put a little wedge in. Last year we argued, and they spent their money in Oak Bay and everywhere else."

"That blackmail type of thing—we should see if we let them put up bigger signs if we could get more money," said Ald. Ramsay.

"Let's forget about the signs and get on with the estimates," said Ald. Elmer McEwen.

Two Army Corporals Jailed

Two Work Point corporals, still to be dealt with in city police court, were sentenced yesterday in Saanich police court.

Robert John Fullerton was sentenced to 16 months, concurrent, on each of three charges of uttering forged documents. Jack Kenneth Dye was given a three-month term for false pretences. The charges involved cheques.

Court was told that Dye had made restitution, and that Fullerton planned to do so.

Both cases, said Magistrate William Ostler, were unfortunate.

Neither man had any previous record. In fact as citizens and as members of the service both men had been highly regarded.

In the case of Fullerton, Magistrate Ostler pointed out that he had been in a position of trust, and had taken advantage of that position to obtain information which he used to his own gain.

Reginald James Fagan and Victor Paul Harrison, both of Sooke, were given suspended sentences following earlier pleas of guilty to trespassing at night.

Harrison was placed under bond of $500 for one year, ordered to report monthly to the probation officer, and told to stay away from liquor.

A similar bond, with the same conditions, was imposed on Fagan for six months.

TOKYO PARKING

Three underground parking lots being built in downtown Tokyo are expected to accommodate 1,000 cars on completion in 1960.
